Treaty With Germany.

It is the acute situation with regard to Germany that has brought forward the suggestion that authority to negotiate such treaties be made the policy upon which all Republicans could unite, nstead of general tariff revision. It s urged that such a plan would be consistent with the traditions of McKinley and Dingley, since both the tariff acts | Ask the ticket agent, bearing their names contain a section providing for such treaties; while it would meet the criticism that certain schedules have become out of joint with changed industrial conditions.

It is known that the one great puroose that the members of the administration are keeping in mind when they alk among themselves as to the tariff is how to avoid interrupting or checking the unprecedented business prosperity of the country. Reinforced Concrete Coming In. Speaking of the probable future of reinforced concrete as a building material in Salt Lake, J. E. McDonald said

"I believe it is the coming building material for this city and Utah. Its fireproof qualities, its durability and its comparative cheapness will, in my judgment, make it very popular here as soon as contractors and builders bycome a little more familiar with its use. "For buildings over seven stories, however, I believe it is scarcely practicable. It is best used in structures running four or seven stories high.

It relates to the admission into the United States at Vancouver, B. C., of ten Hindus who desire to go to San Francisco. The statement of the case shows that six of the ten are diseased, and four are in good physical condition. They have no friends in this country, none of them speak English and they have barely enough money to enable them to reach San Francisco. In the opinion of the immigration officers, they are likely to become public charges. In the past few years 2,500 Hindus have arrived in British Columbia. They are, according to the reports of the dominion immigration authorities, a very undesirable class of immigrants. The feeling in British Columbia is so strong against them on account of their habits and insanitary methods of living that the inhabitants have in some instances burned the Hindus' houses in
